

Programme of study – MARITIME AND RIVER NAVIGATION AND TRANSPORTATION

Information about the qualification and learning outcomes of the programme of study

A. PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCES

- Utilization of the physical-mathematical and IT apparatus specific for the domain of study, as well as of the technical language of communication;
- Application of fundamental technical concepts to the problems and projects associated with the domain of study;
- Carrying out of navigational duties at operational level;
- Carrying out of duties related to cargo handling and stowing at operational level;
- Ship operation control and persons on board protection at operational level;
- Utilization of specific concepts for naval systems design as well as for the selection of the naval equipment;
- Utilization of the fundamental concepts related to the general performances of ships.

B. TRANSVERSE COMPETENCES

- Demonstration and application of a firm, efficient and responsible attitude towards the work performed showing an ethical behavior in solving problems and decision making;
- Efficient utilization of intercultural communication techniques within mixed nationality crews on different hierarchical levels, of oral and written communication, efficient collaboration with specialists from various domains;
- Objective self-evaluation of lifelong professional education, as well as efficient utilization of linguistic abilities, IT knowledge and communication for personal and professional development with a view to labour market insertion and adjustment to its dynamic requirements.